

Sarah Amon and Frank Pisani married October 15, 2010, at the Hotel du Pont.

FORE-GONE

No more golf for the guys.
Get together in a fresh, new way.

Your future husband would like to get the guys together before the wedding, but none of them are big on golf. What other options are there? Try these.

Go Sideways Travel the newly established Delaware Wine and Ale Trail, which includes 12 stops at wineries and craft breweries throughout the First State.

Ply the Waters Canoe or kayak the waters of Delaware with Wilderness Canoes, Coastal Kayak, or Quest Fitness and Kayak. Or rent a sailboat or motorboat to explore Delaware's coast or bays.

Hit the Boards Surfboards, boogie boards, windsurfing, kite boarding—we do it all in Delaware. If your honey and his guys are newbies, have them check into rentals and lessons.

Reel Fun There's nothing like a day of drinking beer and telling fish tales. Best options? Surf fishing at the beach or chartering a boat to get out on the high seas.

Mountain Highs OK, so we don't have Everest, or any mountains at all, for that matter, but novices get can get sort of high on rock climbing indoors at the Delaware Rock Gym in Bear or outdoors at Alapocas Run State Park in North Wilmington.

Take 'Em Out to the Ballgame Whether its football, basketball, hockey or baseball, there's always some pro team playing nearby in Baltimore, D.C., Philly or New York.

Deal 'Em In Local casinos are no longer limited to video lottery games. Now the boys can play poker and other table games at Delaware Park, Dover Downs and Harrington Raceway.

Make Like Tarzan The guys can prove their manliness by crossing rope bridges and zipping through the trees at canopy tours at Spring Mountain ski resort in Pennsylvania or Terrapin Adventures in Savage, Maryland. —Theresa Gawlas Medoff
